Lunch for school
Limited-edition cards
Helmet for biking
Brand-name hoodie
Phone charger
Movie snacks

One need in my life

One want I can wait for

Exit ticket — Why does mixing up needs and wants make planning harder?

Two goals, one saving plan

Name _____ Date _____

	Short-term goal	Long-term goal
What I would save for
About how much ($)
How many weeks
Money to set aside each week

One want I would pause to hit the short-term goal

Exit ticket — How can a short-term save (habit) help a long-term goal?

A simple budget

Name

Date

Sample: You have $30 for a month of “fun + save.” Goal: $12 saved for a class t-shirt. Needs (bus/snack fund) $10. How much is left for wants?

Budget part	Amount ($)	Need, want, save, or donate?
Money I have or will get
Need 1
Want 1
Save
Donate (optional)

Does it balance (in = out + save)?

Yes

Not yet — I would change a want

Exit ticket — What is a budget, in one sentence?

What is pulling on this choice?

Name

Date

One item (sample is fine — do not name what a classmate owns)

Influences I notice (check all that apply)

- ☐ Advertising / “limited time”
- ☐ Friends or belonging
- ☐ Price (it seems cheap or it seems expensive)
- ☐ Quality / how long it lasts
- ☐ Packaging or being at checkout
- ☐ Feeling (bored, stressed, left out)

Is this a need, a want, or a want dressed up as a need? Why?

My plan

Buy now (needs covered, in the budget)

Wait one week

Skip

Exit ticket — Why does noticing an influence help a financial goal?

Four jobs for money (and time)

Name	Date
Job	What this looks like this month (sample dollars are fine)
Earn
Spend (need)
Spend (want, if any)
Save
Donate (money or time)

How does this plan support one financial goal I named in Week 32 or 33?

Exit ticket — Why can donating time count in a financial-literacy plan in Grade 5?

My Grade 5 financial plan

Name

Date

One need I will cover first

One want I can wait for (or plan for)

One goal: what, about how much, how many weeks, weekly save

A tiny budget that balances (in = needs + wants + save + donate)

One influence I will notice before I buy

Exit ticket — How does planning support a financial goal — in one sentence?
