Week 7: How Experiences Shape Perspectives

Two perspectives

Formative: practice and feedback. Give feedback; do not report this sheet as a level.

Scenario A. Sam used the soccer ball at recess. Riley has been waiting and says Sam always hogged it last year. Sam just joined the school this month and did not know there was a rotation.

Person / What they might think / feel / What experience might sit behind that

Sam: Sam: This is an open game. Nobody told me a rule. Just joined this month.

Riley: Riley: Last year felt hogged, so this year already looks unfair.

Scenario B. The teacher asks the class to move seats. Kai is glad (talking neighbours). Morgan is upset (liked the quiet corner).

Person / Perspective in one sentence

Kai: Kai: I am glad because I like talking neighbours.

Morgan: Morgan: I am upset because the quiet corner helped me work.

Exit ticket — Name one personal or environmental factor that can change a perspective.

Where you were standing, what you heard first, or how tired you are — like being stuck as goalie the whole recess.

Look-fors

- Can they define perspective without using “they’re wrong”?
- Did they write both sides fairly in Scenario A?
- Can they name a factor (experience, place, information)?

Tip. Stop any “Riley is just dramatic” talk. The skill is fair restating. You can disagree later; you cannot skip understanding.

Week 8: Listening So Others Feel Heard

Listen and paraphrase

Formative: practice and feedback. Give feedback; do not report this sheet as a level.

Speaker topic: a school-appropriate time something felt unfair (no classmate names).

Their perspective in my words

So you felt rushed because the art bin was empty and you thought our group would get blamed for not starting. Did I get that right?

The question I asked

What happened next? (not a trap question)

Did I interrupt?

No

Did I look at them?

Yes

Partner's check: "You heard me."

Partly

Exit ticket — Which listening move is hardest for you, and why?

Waiting. Silence feels like I am failing, but it is actually the work so I do not reload my own story.

Look-fors

- Did the paraphrase match what the speaker meant?
- Was there one curious question that was not an attack?
- Can they name a listening move they still need?

Tip. Sit where you can hear interruptions. Praise the paraphrase, not the drama of the story. Coaching sentence: "Say their view, not your verdict."

Week 9: Communicating With Respect

Rewrite for respect

Formative: practice and feedback. Give feedback; do not report this sheet as a level.

Change each blunt line into: I noticed… It affected me… Could you…

Blunt line / Respectful three-part message

You always wreck our group.: I noticed the markers were dumped without lids. It affected me because I could not find a working one. Could you put lids on and stand them up?

Give it back, thief.: I noticed my eraser did not come back after math. Could you return it at recess?

That's a stupid idea.: I noticed a different plan. Could we try yours for five minutes and then check?

One real situation I might need this for (no names required)

A borrowed eraser that never came back. Ask at recess, not during the mini-lesson.

Exit ticket — Why does a specific ask work better than a put-down?

The other person can actually do the thing. Stop being awful is not a job. Please return the eraser after math is.

Look-fors

- Do the rewrites include a fact, an effect, and an ask?
- Did they drop sarcasm?
- Can they explain why timing and tone matter?

Tip. Collect one strong rewrite under the document camera with no student names on it.

Week 10: When Perspectives Differ

Shared understanding, not a winner

Formative: practice and feedback. Give feedback; do not report this sheet as a level.

The situation (no real classmate names)

Soccer ball at recess — rotation not explained to a new student.

Person A's view, said fairly

Sam thinks it is an open game and feels accused.

Person B's view, said fairly

Riley remembers last year and already feels left out.

Overlap (what both people want or need)

Both want a fair game and both want to play.

A next step both could live with

Three-touch rotation for the rest of the week, posted on the door, check-in Friday.

Exit ticket — How is shared understanding different from winning an argument?

Each person can say the other view without twisting it, and both can live with the next step. Nobody has to be the villain.

Look-fors

- Are both views fair, not sarcastic?
- Is the next step doable this week?

Tip. If a real recess conflict is live, do not put those two students on the spot. Use the worksheet scenario.

Week 11: Working Together on a Shared Task

Shared task — class fair booth

Summative evidence (observation): watch the shared task. Note real jobs, listening, and respectful asks on the class checklist.

Booth name and what we will offer

Bookmark-and-sticker stall with a popcorn-themed design. No hot plate.

Job / Who

Materials — Harper

Sign — Dev

Both names on the plan

One time I paraphrased or asked a curious question

So you are worried about safety and an adult, not about bookmarks being cooler.

One respectful three-part line we needed (or could have used)

I noticed popcorn needs a hot plate. It affects whether a supervisor has to stand there. Could we keep the theme without cooking?

Where our perspectives differed and what we did

Popcorn vs bookmarks. Overlap: a booth kids visit that Grade 5 can run. Next step: theme without the hot plate.

Exit ticket — Which relationship skill showed up in the work, not just on the page?

Paraphrase. We almost said fine, whatever. Restating the worry saved the plan.

Look-fors

- Did more than one person have a real job?
- Is there evidence of listening or a respectful ask, not only a pretty booth name?

Tip. If a pair finishes in four minutes, they are skipping the process. Sit beside them and ask for the paraphrase out loud.

Week 12: Connecting Perspectives to Healthy Relationships

Relationship wrap

Summative evidence (product): the relationship wrap. Score the unit rubric with your Week 11 observation notes.

Skill / One example from this unit (or from real life, no names)

Perspective (say it fairly): Sam/Riley soccer — both honest.

Listening: Paraphrase of the empty art bin.

Respectful talk: I-message about lids.

Shared understanding: Three-touch rotation as a next step.

The skill I still need, and one way I will practise it

Waiting. I will count two seconds before I jump in with my story.

Exit ticket — In kid language: what does it mean to connect perspectives?

I can say someone else's view without twisting it, say mine without attacking, and pick a next step together.

Look-fors

- Can they state the outcome without the word "winning"?
- Did they name a skill they still need?

Tip. Use the rubric now. Do not average six worksheets. Look at the wrap plus one strong earlier sheet.
